

Ethics & Religion Learning Journey

The Ethics & Religion curriculum at Willingdon School asks students to consider the world around them and the diverse views of many people helping them to learn to critically think about alternative beliefs and use their understanding to form well balanced arguments. Our vision is that students explore the diverse society, environment and global community they live in. We want them to engage in their learning but also with their communities, their heritage and their culture, to become fully functional members of whatever community they are in or they become a part of in the future. Lastly, we want to empower our young people, with knowledge, empathy and tolerance to build confidence, challenge misconceptions and model respect.
