

CURRICULUM BOOKLET

History

ACE Historians are Articulate, Curious and Engaged.

Our School Curriculum Intent

The curriculum at Willingdon Community School offers a broad, balanced, personalised and challenging educational experience, which builds on students' experiences in the primary phase of their education.

It aims to provide all students with the knowledge, understanding, skills and attitudes which are necessary if they are to become successful learners who enjoy learning, make progress and achieve the best they are capable of.

Subject Vision

At Willingdon we aim to support students to become ACE historians, that is Articulate, Curious and Engaged.

We aim to empower our students by developing their literacy and oracy skills so that they can communicate effectively. We encourage and support students to be intellectually curious and ask questions because knowing about the past can help students to understand the world in which they live today, so that they can build a better future. We believe that History should support young people to be active citizens through developing critical minds that can use and weigh evidence to make considered judgements. Throughout their time at Willingdon we also build their understanding that History is not just a narrative but can be interpreted and experienced in different ways.

One of our principal aims in the History department is also to develop enagement and a love of learning. Willingdon school follows the National Curriculum for History which continues to provide our students with a broad and balanced curriculum. Our current learning journey gives students a chronological overview of British History since 1066, there are also several wider world studies that enrich student's understanding of other cultures.

We also ensure students build a mental map of the past and are able to make links between different topics in order to ensure real, deep knowledge and undertstanding. The themes of our curriculum are:

Power and Protest- who holds power in different periods? How can protest be used to challenge those in power?

Conflict- Why do Conflicts start? How do conflicts change and shape lives?

Beliefs and Ideas- How did religion shape Medieval Society? How did religion change in the Early Modern Period? How have new ideas such as democracy, equality and representation developed across time? How have ideas such as Socialism and Communism changed the world?

Social and 'Ordinary' lives- How have historical events affected those not in the political elite or 'ordinary' people? What impact did religious changes, industrailisation and war have on how people lived their lives?

Key Concepts In History

History lessons are enquiry led with students being encouraged to engage with an exciting historical question every lesson. We also encourage students to develop their understanding of History as a discipline.

In History lessons, students will be encouraged to develop their understanding of

- ✓ Continuity and Change- How and why does change happen?
- ✓ Evidential understanding- How can evidence be used to help us find out about the past? How useful are different types of evidence?
- ✓ Interpretations- Why do people have different interpretations of the same historical events? How is History constructed?
- Causation- What causes an event to happen? How can we categorise and understand the different causes?
- ✓ Significance- Are some historical events more important than others? How do we judge the significance of different events?
- ✓ Similarity and difference- How did people in the past experience the same events in different ways? How do people's beliefs and values in different periods compare to the world today?
- Chronological understanding- Students are encouraged to develop their subject specific vocabulary and a sense of the scale of time.

Programme of Study Key Stage 3

Year 7

We begin Year 7 with a series of lessons which develop students Historical skills. We ensure students are able to engage with historical evidence and develop their understanding of key historical concepts such as change and continuity and causation. This enables all students to begin Key Stage 3 in History with similar skills, whatever their experience of History at primary school.

The first major study of Year 7 is Medieval England, starting with The Anglo Saxons and the Battle of Hastings in 1066. This is followed with a study of the Norman consolidation of power, The Medieval Church and King John and the Magna Carta. The students will study the Significance of the Black Death as a historical event, including it's economic, social and political consequences.

Students will then move on to look at the major changes that took place during the Early Modern Period. They will study the religious changes made by Henry VIII and the English Reformation. They will investigate why characters in History can be viewed in different ways through a study of 'Bloody Mary.' They will explore why Tudor England is often described as a religious rollercoaster!

In the final term, students will explore the changing relationship of King and Parliament as they study the English Civil War. Students will consider the social changes of the period and investigate why for many the world seemed 'upside down.'

Throughout Key Stage 3 homework is used to consolidate the work carried out in the lessons. Students are set a variety of tasks appropriate to their ability and progress. In year 7 this includes a Castle project, extended writing pieces and online quizzes.

Year 8

During Year 8, students will investigate the making of the modern world. Through a study of the Kingdom of Benin and the Transatlantic slave trade students will engage with the theme of power and protest. The students will explore the impact of protest by abolitionists and how this led to greater equality in Britain and the wider world.

Students will then move on to an enquiry on the changes in Britain 1750-1900. They will study the religious, social, political and economic changes of this period and consider how these changes affected different groups of people within society. Students will also investigate Britain's place in the world at the turn of the twentieth century with an enquiry into how the British Empire should be remembered.

Finally, Year 8 students will delve into the horrors of the trenches of World War One. Students will investigate why the war began, who fought and the impact of conflict on people's lives.

Year 9

In Year 9, students will study the Twentieth century world. This begins with a study of the USA in the inter war period, including prohibition, organised crime and the impact of the depression.

Through a study of World War 2 and the Holocaust. Students will again be engaged with themes such as conflict and power whilst also considering how and why persecution develops. Students will investigate why World War 2 began and its impact on the modern world. They will also compare and contrast differing forms of government, dictatorship and democracy, communism and capitalism.

Later in Year 9, students will be led through an enquiry into the Cold War. Students will gain an understanding of how new forms of conflict developed in the post war period. Finally, students will study Britain since 1945 and learn how events such as the creation of the NHS and the arrival of the Windrush have shaped the Britain today.

Assessment Plan for Key Stage 3

At the end of each unit, students will be set an assessment which aims to check their understanding of the topic and gives them a chance to show off their brilliant knowledge and understanding.

Throughout Key Stage 3 students will be given an opportunity to engage with assessments on the key concepts in History i.e.- causation, interpretations, significance, change and continuity, using evidence and similarity and difference. Students will be supported in building up the subject specific skills they need in order to be successful at GCSE and beyond.

Study the past, build a better future.

The study of History is central to our understanding of the world in which we live. The roots of so many of today's news stories can be found in the past and the insights gained may shed light on the solutions to many of the issues that face us both now and in the future. This course will provide you with a deeper understanding of important social issues; encourage you to think independently and to develop opinions based on evidence.

Why study History GCSE?

The study of History involves developing transferable skills. The ability to evaluate different sources of information with a critical eye, to empathise with others and to communicate ideas and information are all central to this subject and are valued in all areas of education, employment and life.

Students who chose History say...

'I love talking and am very opinionated so History suits me down to the ground'

'I chose History because you learn about real events that still affect the world today.'

'It is challenging... but I like that, I think it's important to push yourself. History is a great subject for people who want to go into journalism or law because it's all about weighing up the evidence and making supported arguments.'

Assessment Plan for Key Stage 4

At Key Stage 4 we are preparing students for their final GCSE assessments –

The AQA History GCSE has two examination papers. Both papers are 2 hours long and worth 50% of the GCSE. 5% of the marks awarded are for spelling, punctuation and grammar. There are 4 main areas on which students are assessed, these are known as Assessment Objectives (AOs)

AO1: demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the key features and characteristics of the period studied.

AO2: explain and analyse historical events and periods studied using second-order historical concepts.

AO3: analyse, evaluate and use sources (contemporary to the period) to make substantiated judgements, in the context of historical events studied

AO4: analyse, evaluate and make substantiated judgements about interpretations (including how and why interpretations may differ) in the context of historical events studied

In order to fully prepare students, teachers will regularly set exam style questions in class and for homework. At the end of each unit the students' progress will be assessed with an end of unit test.

Further to this, there are opportunities to sit full examinations as part of the school's mock exam calendar. Student's progress is carefully tracked by their teachers and they will be provided with regular oral and written feedback.

Literacy in History

Literacy is central to the work of the History department. In History we regularly give student's opportunities to develop their extended writing skills, through responding to historical enquiry questions and through formal assessment pieces and homework. Through our marking and feedback, we ensure students reflect on their own writing style and improve their spelling and grammar.

Students also develop their reading skills in History as they are exposed to a wide range of fiction and non fiction texts. We also encourage our students to engage with enrichment texts through a list of recommended books that link to the History curriculum. We also have a book club where students are invited to read historical fiction and discuss with their peers and a member of the History department.

Students develop their vocabulary each lesson as key words are written down and then applied in context. We believe that good oracy supports literacy and History offers many opportunites for students to debate, present and explain their ideas verbally before putting it into writing.

Raising aspirations in History

The History department is keen to ensure the highest aspirations for students of all abilities. We strive to ensure that our students are kept engaged through enquiry led learning and high level questioning and debate in the classroom.

In addition to this, we encourage students to complete a wide range of homework which supports them in developing the knowledge, reading skills, extended writing and research skills they will need for a wide range of careers.

Numeracy in History

The History department work to ensure that the importance of numeracy is recognised and its applications in everyday life. We seize opportunities to integrate numeracy into the History curriculum wherever possible.

We also promote Maths in History as appropriate, for example through the exploration of the role of Alan Turing in breaking the Enigma code during World War 2.

Broadening horizons in History

The History department is passionate about giving students a wide range of experiences and opportunities. As part of our commitment to 'broadening horizons' we run yearly trips to Hampton Court Palace for Year 7 as part of their study of the Tudors and the English Reformation.

In addition to this, the History department have run regular trips to Ypres and the World War One Battlefields. Students have been given the opportunity to visit Tyne Cot Cemetery, the largest Commonwealth cemetery in the world, as well as the German cemetery at Langemark. Students have had an opportunity to visit the Passchendaele Museum, the Menin gate and the beautiful city of Ypres to visit the many chocolate shops on offer!

We have also run trips to Poland for students to experience the beautiful city of Krakow and to engage with Auschwitz, the site of Nazi concentration and extermination camps during World War 2.

Throughout the year, we lead a number of assemblies which engage students in important events such as Black History Month, Remembrance Day and Holocaust Memorial Day. Students have also had opportunities to meet with Holocaust survivors at local memorial events.
